

Sell your wife . . . and buy an Allied Seabreeze 35.

Let's face it: Before you buy the boat you want to buy, your wife has to be sold on the idea.

Here's some ammunition for you:

The Seabreeze is 35' long – and easy to sail. She looks 45' long inside – and she's easy to live aboard. The cabin plan is open, with formica, vinyl and teak surfaces. The dinette layout seats up to eight people. Converts into a comfortable 6'5" by 4' double berth. (And no need to squeeze into quarter berths.)

There are all kinds of conveniences to make things easier. Like an asbestos backed turn-over shelf in the galley, for hot pots. An ice box with easy-to-clean removable dividers. A three-burner stove and oven. Plus an astonishing amount of storage space, with hanging lockers (room for a cocktail dress for every night of the week). Along with six opening-ports and two dorade vents for ventilation – and ten windows and translucent hatch for light. With everything possible Yacht Safety Bureau tested.

There's elegance and there's comfort aboard the Seabreeze 35. Plus seaworthiness and race-ability.

But to really sell your wife (and yourself) you ought to come see the boat. We're just two hours from New York City by car. And wherever you are – there's Albany airport, just 30 minutes away. See the Seabreeze 35 right here. Afloat and a-building. You could watch the boat being built that could end up being yours. And at a price that is very right.

If you can't visit us in person, we'll send you a very complete brochure on the Seabreeze 35. Yours for the asking.

Allied yachts are built by people who put more of themselves into the boats they build than others may think worthwhile.
