

What cruising boat had the audacity to enter the southern ocean racing circuit?
A SEABREEZE CITATION

When we designed the Seabreeze 35 Citation, luxurious cruising was the watchword.

That's why we gave her a long keel with a centerboard for exploring shallow lagoons. That's why we made hot and cold running water standard. That's why the head is accessible from either cabin without destroying the two-cabin privacy. That's why such details as curtain rods and window screens have not been forgotten.

All these things and more went into what has been termed the most comfortable cruising sailboat afloat.

Yet, hardly a major ocean racing event is ever reported in the yachting columns without our recognizing the name of one of our Seabreezes. Like that of Rick Rack, pictured to the left, who gave a more than good account of herself in last winter's SORC.

Is it possible that, in designing the Seabreeze for sheer relaxation, we got a bit of speed mixed into the formula? For the answer, you might ask any of the more than 125 Seabreeze owners. Write, and we'll refer you to some in your neighborhood as well as send a brochure giving all the details on the Seabreeze Citation, the 35-foot cruising boat that owners dare enter in the toughest racing competition.
